Some of the frills that now accompany the high school education rightfully belong, I submit, to the lower grades, not studies such as "bugology," anthropological research and what not, but manual training and things of that kind that might well be given smaller children as sort of recess amusement. A little carpentering for the boys, a little sewing for the girls, things of that kind. See the need of it. Intelligent Solution Sought.

This is but a suggestion inspired by, as I say, all this reform and fussing about the schools. Now let others who have given the matter more attention than I, and who are in every way better prepared to settle such matters, give it their serious attention. I, a plain fellow, simply feel and think I know that there is a screw loose somewhere in this schooling affair, and I would like to have some intelligent solution of the to the students of the washington corproblem presented. In making the suggestion that the one that has been given awarded the remaining one year scholawarded the remaining one year scholars is not absolutely perfect, I sincerely trust that the honorable school board and those interested will appreciate my motives and absolve me from the slightmotives and absolve me from the slightest intention of committing any act F.
